W. Virginia Pulp & Paper Promotes Two

The promotion of two men to top assignments in the Bag Division of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., which has a plant in Torrance, has been announced. John C. Floyd, manager of the New Orleans plant of the Bag Division, has been named production manager for the division. Shelton J. Jones, manager of the St. Louis plant since 1959, has been appointed manager of the New Orleans plant to succeed Floyd. The openings were filled by present members of the Bag Division's staff in keeping with the company policy of promoting from within when individual job performance indicates that promotion is deserved. Floyd will have overall responsibility for the manufacturing operations at all five plants including the one in Torrance. Other plants of the Bag Division are in Charleston, S.C.; Wechsburg, W. Va.; New Orleans, and St. Louis.

Hahn Seeks Legal Opinion In Fight on 'ODO' Plates

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn has sought a legal opinion determining liability for damages in the event a law enforcement officer misreads a 1963 California license plate.

Hahn says he is convinced that the new plates are confusing — that the "Q," "O" and "D" appear to be almost identical — and that plates bearing those letters should be re-issued for the safety of the public.

He has asked County Counsel Harold Kennedy to determine if damages could be collected for someone arrested or injured because of "mistaken license plates."

"Who would be liable," Hahn asked, "the law enforcement officer himself, the governmental jurisdiction he represents, or the State of California, through Tom Bright, Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles?"

Hahn says he has been informed by Bright that "it would be too expensive" to reissue license plates or even issue small tapes so motorists could extend the tail of the "Q" on their licenses.

Hahn contends that the present plates could cause an innocent person to be arrested or injured.

He cites the possible situation of a young person, driving his family's car without permission, becoming scared upon hearing police car sirens and speeding off in panic. The officers could possibly confuse the car license for one on their "hot" list and give chase.

"If injury or accident results," Hahn said, "I want to make sure who would be liable for damages."

Hahn said that he "saw no great bureaucratic problems to solve" in reissuing

the license plates. Hahn said that Sheriff Peter Pitchess and several Southland city police departments support his request that the plates be reissued.
